ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is impossible to name more than a few of those who have helped me over the course of many years, but I would like particularly to acknowledge my debt to Miss Margaret Mackenzie who set me on the path of serious historical research, and to Miss Barbara Fenwick who has sat in record offices for many long hours transcribing material for me. Dr Jessie Ridge and Mr F. H. Rawlings have been so generous as to allow me access to their unpublished material, which was extremely useful; whilst the help, encouragement, and stimulating exchange of ideas with Dr Edwin Clarke and Dr Douglas Whittet have proved invaluable. I am very conscious of the debt I owe to the editorial staff of Medical History, in particular to Mrs J. Runciman whose patience and ingenuity in dealing with problems seem to be inexhaustible.

To my husband I can but say "Thank you" and that without you none of this work would have been possible.

NOTE

It should be noted that dates of days from the 1st January to the 24th March prior to 1752 are given according to the moden calendrical style, as if the year began on the 1st January.
